Product sheet

SinHumanos — Platform for companies to adopt AI: skills (executable knowledge) and agents that do the work connected to their tools, plus computer vision and chat with data.

Everyone offers you bots. We offer you assets.

This product is part of the Menteia portfolio and has no round or valuation of its own in this package.

The problem

- Companies want to adopt AI but don't know where to start: isolated pilots, chatbots that don't execute and training courses nobody finishes.
- Operational knowledge lives in people and manuals; when someone leaves, it leaves with them.
- Agent platforms require coding or lock the company into a single AI provider and someone else's cloud.

The solution

SinHumanos turns company knowledge into executable skills (no code) and puts them to work with agents connected to email, Excel, Office, Drive, Slack, GitHub and calendar, with an audit trail and human approval. It adds computer vision for visual inspection and document validation, and chat with data to query databases in natural language. Multi-model, with on-premise deployment for enterprises.

- Conversational Skill Creator: the accountant, the analyst or the salesperson describes how they work in Spanish and the skill builds itself.
- Skills Hub: public catalog and private repository with versioning and forks.
- Agents with secure access to company tools; the person supervises and approves.
- Computer vision: visual inspection, document validation and image analysis in real processes.
- Chat with data: natural-language questions about company databases, no SQL.

Why it is different

- Knowledge as an asset: skills are owned by the company, versioned and defensible.
- Zero code: built for workers, not developers.
- No lock-in: any AI model, in the customer's cloud if required.
- Computer vision and chat with data in the same adoption platform.
